A 'landmark day'

Grand opening.

Emergency department at city's new hospital ready to take in patients today

JEREMY NOLAI
jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

Physicians are expecting a rush of patients almost immediately as the emergency department of Calgary's largest hospital opens for business Monday.

Evaluation and treatment of patients at the South Health Campus will officially begin at 7 a.m. In all, 30 new treatment spaces will go online in the emergency department as well as 20 short-stay spaces in a new rapid access unit — currently the only of its kind in Canada.

The grand opening, which follows an initial phasing-in of some services at the campus in September, seemingly couldn't come at a better time — emergency departments have been crammed in recent weeks with thousands of patients battling outbreaks of both influenza and Norovirus.

"I think Calgarians need to know that this is an amazing opportunity for the city ... we

- The total price tag for the South Health Campus, located at 4448 Front Street S.E., is pegged at $1.3 billion, more than double the original estimated cost for the project.
- Officials anticipate the campus emergency department will treat 60,000 patients in its first year of operation.
- Inpatient beds at the hospital will open in roughly six week increments. By the end of the year, it's expected the campus will have 269.

ed" to learn of the emergency department opening, she was also taken aback.

"I heard as late as Thursday that it was going to be delayed again until October," she said Sunday. "It just goes to show the poor communication that has come with this hospital."

Alberta Health Services officials, however, said they kept the opening under wraps until early Monday to protect patients who may arrive at the emergency department prematurely — something that has already happened multiple times in recent months.

Concerns were also raised last year about recruitment of staff for the campus, however, Nijssen-Jordan said many of those wrinkles have been ironed out. One-third of emergency department staff were hired outside of Calgary, with some coming in from as far away as Europe.

Heather Smith, president of the United Nurses of Alberta, reinforced those comments when reached late Sunday.

"We aren't hearing of any issues," she said, adding the first few days of emergency department operations will be key to determining whether staffing levels are adequate.

Snowmobile. Speed, booze believed to be involved in fatal crash

A man was killed and a woman was seriously injured Sunday when their snowmobile crashed in a farmer's field in southeast Calgary, according to police.

"The snowmobile was travelling at a high rate of speed across a field when it drove into a large ditch," Insp. Patty McCallum said.

The 1997 Arctic Cat snowmobile "vaulted from the far side of (a) ditch" and crashed about 23 metres away, she added.

"On landing, the snowmobile was severely damaged and the occupants experienced severe trauma," McCallum said.

The 25-year-old male driver was pronounced dead at the scene and the 21-year-old female passenger was taken to Foothills Hospital with serious injuries, according to police.

Medical responders had to use a specialized SUV to access the crash site, according to EMS spokesperson Stuart Brideaux.

"We had to venture out into the field a ways off the road," Brideaux said. "We began treatment and moved her, actually, in the SUV out to the waiting ambulance."

Police believe the two people on the snowmobile were part of a larger group who were taking turns riding in the area.

McCallum said speed and alcohol are believed to be factors in the crash, which happened in a field near Industry Way S.E.

The crash coincided with the beginning of "International Snowmobile Safety Week," during which time snowmobiling associations urge enthusiasts to avoid alcohol while riding, to "slow down," and to "always expect the unexpected" when riding at night.

'Beautiful kid' killed in weekend stabbing

Tragedy. University of Calgary student Brett Wiese is city's third homicide victim of 2013

jeremy.nolais@metronews.ca

He was a "beautiful kid" with a bright future.

But now family members of 21-year-old Brett Wiese will be left to wonder what could have been after he was stabbed twice while apparently trying to break up a confrontation at a house party early Saturday.

"This has come as a surprise to everyone," said Brett's uncle, Kip Wiese. "He was at a house-party with his friends enjoying himself ... it was the wrong place at the wrong time."

Police report arriving to a home in the 5100 block of Brisebois Drive around 3 a.m. Saturday. Two people were rushed to hospital and one later died.

The other victim, a friend

The scene

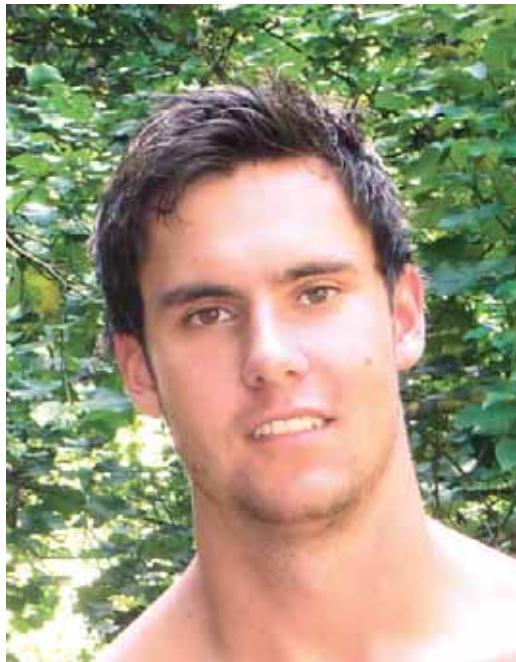

- Police tape surrounded the home where Calgary student Brett Wiese was killed over the weekend. From the street, a number of beer bottles could be seen stacked on a counter.

- Police duty Insp. Patty McCallum said investigators will be "working around the clock" and she expected more information to be released Monday.

of Wiese's, was in critical condition until his condition was upgraded Sunday, Kip said.

Police have informed the family they believe a group of people were sent away from the house party earlier in the night and as many as four individuals returned armed with knives.

Kip said he's been informed that police have retained two suspects in custody, including one believed to be a minor.

Some of the final C-Train riders to use Chinook Station before it closes Monday for an eight-month renovation were still unsure how the area's modified transit system will work.

"There's still some confusion," said Xeniya Kostenko, who uses the station a couple times a week.

She felt the city had communicated the station's closure "well enough" to transit users but said the associated changes in bus routes still had people scratching their heads.

One thing Kostenko was sure of was that her travel times would increase.

"It's going to be more difficult," she said.

Ald. Brian Pincott, whose ward includes Chinook Centre, said city employees have done a commendable job coming up with a plan that will create the "least amount of disruption possible" at the city's busiest C-Train station.

Still, he anticipated some bumps in the road as commuters get used to the changes.

"We are creatures of habit," Pincott said.

Transit rider Terry Begemann said he learned about the station's closure a month ago but still isn't clear on the modified bus routes.

And, as for how the changes will affect his travel times?

"I guarantee you — a lot," he said.

No lives lost. Fire destroys southwest home

One of three people who safely evacuated a southwest house fire early Sunday morning said he was grateful no one was injured in the blaze.

"I have the good blessing from God, you know, because I'm out and my wife is out and my mother-in-law is out," said the man, who didn't want his name published.

The bungalow, however, will likely be a total loss, following the two-alarm fire that broke out around 4 a.m. in the 1100 block of 47th Street S.W.

"The house is gone," the man said. "What's done is done."

The blaze compromised the structural integrity of the home, according to the fire department, and the building will likely be demolished.

No injuries were reported among the residents, their pets, or the firefighters involved.

The cause of the fire is under investigation.

"We're just going to hold off on the demolition until after the investigation is finished," said Calgary Fire Department Battalion Chief Al Magwood. ROBSON FLETCHER/METRO

6 men arrested in India after another gang rape

Friday night attack.

29-year-old woman was travelling to her village in northern Punjab state when driver took her to a desolate location: Cops

Police said Sunday they have arrested six suspects in another gang rape of a bus passenger in India, four weeks after a brutal attack on a student on a moving bus in the capital outraged Indians and led to calls for tougher rape laws.

Police officer Raj Jeet Singh said a 29-year-old woman was the only passenger on a bus as she was travelling to her village in northern Punjab state on Friday night. The driver refused to stop at her village despite her repeated pleas and drove her to a desolate location, he said.

There, the driver and the conductor took her to a building where they were joined by five friends and took turns raping her throughout the night, Singh said.

The driver dropped the woman off at her village early Saturday, he said.

Singh said police arrested six suspects on Saturday and were searching for another.

Gurmej Singh, deputy superintendent of police, said all six men admitted involvement in the rape. He said the victim was recovering at home.

Also on Saturday, police arrested a 32-year-old man for allegedly raping and killing a nine-year-old girl two weeks ago in Ahmednagar

Nortel verdict will send message, observer says

Monday ruling. Former executives accused of cooking books, each face up to 10 years in prison

Three former Nortel executives accused of orchestrating a widespread multimillion-dollar fraud will learn their fate Monday, nearly a year after one of the largest criminal trials in Canada's corporate history began.

Ontario Superior Court Justice Frank Marrocco is set to rule on whether ex-CEO Frank Dunn, ex-CFO Douglas Beatty and ex-controller Michael Gollogly manipulated financial statements at Nortel Networks Corp. from 2002 to 2003.

The men, who each face two counts of fraud, are accused of participating in a book-cooking scheme designed to trigger $12.8 million in bonuses and stocks for themselves at the once powerful Canadian technology giant. The accused, who were fired in 2004, have all pleaded not guilty to the charges. If convicted, each could face up to 10 years in prison.

Alberta's ethics officer will investigate, but the real conflict is that our province regulates a product that is directly linked to most cancer deaths in this province and that it provides a lot of revenue to us.

Maybe we've accepted that. I don't think we should.

Research shows high taxes on cigarettes discourage smoking, especially among youth. Yet, Redford's government promises no new taxes for three years, even on cigarettes. This is in direct conflict with the government's own tobacco reduction strategy.

Tackle it with taxes per cent of the cases. Let's not get so used to the fact we just accept it.

Medical leaders with Alberta Health Services are frustrated: frustrated with low taxes on cigarettes, frustrated with AHS staff who smoke, with teens smoking, and young women trying to say thin.

As one physician told me: lung cancer is the women's cancer (and the men's cancer). It kills more than breast, prostate and colorectal cancers combined.

Tobacco tax brings in $925 million in yearly Alberta revenue (5.2 per cent of total), even more than fuel tax.

I agree with the tobacco companies: how can a government sue for a product it sells and regulates?

Then, there's Ald. Chabot, who proposed a bylaw to restrict outdoor smoking in Calgary last month. News reports say he's trying to beat the habit.

Calgary City Council seems skittish about restricting citizen freedoms, about making smoking voters mad.

So it's referred the smoking proposal for more study. When it comes back to council, let's join 34 Canadian municipalities with smoking restrictions for beaches and parks.

It makes more sense to tie bylaws to the most harm: and smoking, not pitbulls, or fast bikers, or unpicked-up dog poop, is a leading cause of harm.

It would take political leadership to go hard at our number one cause of cancer death.

Yes, it would.

City bustles despite warning

Beijing's air pollution goes off the index

People refused to venture outdoors and buildings disappeared into Beijing's murky skyline on Sunday as the air quality in China's notoriously polluted capital went off the index.

The Beijing Municipal Environmental Monitoring Center said the density of PM2.5 particulates had surpassed 700 micrograms per cubic metre in many parts of the city. The World Health Organization considers a safe daily level to be 25 micrograms per cubic metre.

The centre recommended that children and the elderly stay indoors.

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's air quality index goes up to only 500, and the agency advises that anything greater than 300 would trigger a health warning of "emergency conditions."

Awards. Tina Fey and Amy Poehler delight as hosts; Canuck composer Mychael Danna gives a shout-out to friends and family back home

 NED EHRBAR
Metro World News in Hollywood

All of Hollywood was focused on the 70th Annual Golden Globe Awards Sunday night as awards season kicked into high gear with the Hollywood Foreign Press' yearly party at the Beverly Hilton.

Wins for Daniel Day-Lewis for Lincoln (best actor in a drama), Jessica Chastain for Zero Dark Thirty (best actress in a drama), Michael Hanake for Amour (best foreign language film)

Best of the bars

"I haven't seen someone so totally alone and abandoned since you were on stage with James Franco at the Oscars."

Tina Fey pays Anne Hathaway a backhanded compliment for her role in Les Misérables and Anne Hathaway for Les Misérables (best supporting actress) certainly help their chances at next month's Academy Awards. But Ben Affleck, who won for directing Argo, will have to be happy with the Golden Globe, as he was infamously shut out of the Oscar nominations for best director. But its win for best picture — drama could help its win in the tight, nine-way best picture race at the Oscars.

Jodie Foster, who received the Cecil B. Demille Award for her long career in Hollywood, used her acceptance speech to stun audiences by addressing her sexuality more openly than she ever has — without actually saying she's a lesbian — while also taking the press at large to task for continuing to bring up the issue. "I already did my coming out about a thousand years ago in the Stone Age," Foster said. "If you had been a public figure from the time that you were a toddler, you might value privacy. I have given everything up there from the time that I was 3 years old."

This year's new co-hosts, Tina Fey and Amy Poehler, drew raves for their work, with a lively opening segment that poked just enough fun at the attendees to make it memorable. "Only at the Golden Globes do the beautiful people of film rub shoulders with the rat-faced people of television," joked Poehler.

Canadian composer Mychael Danna picked up the best score award for Life of Pi.

"I felt very, very blessed, even before this, and I speak for the whole cast and crew, to be part of the whole Life of Pi experience," he said. "Beautiful, special film. A film of a lifetime."

Danna spent nearly a year working on the score for Life of Pi, which tells the story of a shipwrecked Indian boy adrift in the Pacific Ocean with a Bengal tiger. The musician thanked his parents for giving him "the gift of music" and his friends and kids "back in Toronto." Also in the music category, Adele received her first Golden Globe for best song for Skyfall.

On the TV side of things, Homeland stars Damien Lewis and Claire Danes earned the trophy for best actor and actress in a TV Drama. Homeland also won for best TV drama. HBO's Game Change, about Sarah Palin, won big, taking home best TV movie, best supporting actor for Ed Harris and best actress for Julianne Moore's depiction of Palin.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Jackass alum killing it with his new reality show

Mark Breslin

scene@metronews.ca

Steve-O is the host of Killer Karaoke, a new series airing Tuesdays at 10 p.m. ET on Action.

The show features contestants performing their favourite songs in extreme and outrageous circumstances.

We recently caught up with the Jackass alumnus to learn more about the show, aging and making people cry.

You became famous for putting your body on the line in shows like Jackass.

Now you're putting other people's bodies on the line. Are you getting older or are you getting smarter? Or both?

I would like to believe both. I think that it's a good idea for me to work towards having a career more than a guy that just hurts himself.

Do the contestants know what fate awaits them?

When we're shooting a guy in a dog attack suit, he's probably got an inkling that he'll be attacked by dogs. But for the most part, we don't let anybody on to what's going to happen.

And when you decide on what people are going to do, do you match the contestants' particular fears

Where we are able to cater to a person's particular fears, we do.

Is anybody so tough that they just go through the song like the challenge is not even happening?

That hasn't happened. The challenges are tough enough that not one single person has made it through without registering some sort of difficulty.

Who makes better contestants, men or women?

Depends on the challenge. Everyone loves to see a guy in pain, I think and they love to see women scared, but not in pain.

So what were some ideas that you came up with that went too far even for you?

There was one point when a girl was crying, I don't like to see that. I think that one went a little too far. I don't like to make people cry. I would hate to be a contestant on Killer Karaoke — that's the honest truth, man. I would not do well on getting electrocuted that much.

Sunscreen

Lather up. Yes, even in the winter

Even when it's hidden behind sleetin rain, the sun can harm your skin, says Boston-based dermatologist Dr. Thomas Rohrer. He explains why this is the case.

Why do we need to wear sunscreen in the winter?

Basically, the skin really doesn't care if it's summer, winter, spring or fall — it just measures the cumulative amount of sun exposure that you have from the day you're born until the day you die, and it just keeps adding up. For a lot of the skin cancers, what happens is, as we get more and more sun, eventually one of our weaker cells reaches its limit and then forms a cancer, so whether you get that from walking to the car each day in the spring or sitting out on the beach for a couple hours in the summer, it really doesn't make a difference to the skin.

What about on days when you can't even see the sun?

On cloudy days, some of the damaging rays of the sun go right through the clouds.

(Using sunscreen) should just become a part of someone's daily skin-care routine.

Parenting fads set to rule the playground in 2013

Yearly predictions.

Each year, parents jump on new trends, and many of them are just plain annoying

IT'S ALL RELATIVE
Kathy Buckworth,
kathybuckworth.com

Another year has gone by and another year filled with annoying parenting trends has been ushered in.

Here are some fads I'd like to see disappear by the end of 2013.

Trophies for all

This one has been around for a while. We are raising our kids in a generation of "everybody wins and nobody loses" and what this does is make losers of us all. Without experiencing not winning, kids don't know how thrilling it really is to bring home a coveted trophy or medal. They don't give out Participation Medals at the Olympics; let's stop giving our kids trophies for simply turning up. Think of the money, gold coloured plastic, and particleboard that could be saved.

Snacks at every event

From visiting the local park to half-time at a pre-school soccer game, apparently we've decided our children can not a) be hungry at any point or b) be expected to not have a snack every half an hour that c) parents must carry with them at all times. Recess snacks? Snack break at a play date? End the madness, please.

Ramping up holiday time

Kids used to send Valentine's Day cards to only kids they actually liked in their classroom. Strange concept compared to today, when kids have to send in cards to everyone in the class, and half of them come with candies, stickers or pencils attached. Then there's the mom who brings in (more!) snacks to the class on her child's birthday. Let's lower that bar (and cost and calorie count) just a bit, OK?

Food deception

This trend continues to be popular as parents everywhere hide kale, quinoa, broccoli and other healthy foods inside sauces, stews and other mixed dishes. Of course it's great to feed kids nutritious food, but they should also appreciate and learn about what they are eating so that they can make informed decisions once they leave home. One day they'll have to decide what to pick for themselves or (gasp) make their own lunch.

Kid-tatorship

In many households, the kids are running the show when it comes to what they eat, when they eat, when they go to bed, what activities they choose to do and even where to go on vacation. It's not all about the kids, kids. Remember that parents are people too and make sure you're not sacrificing all of your wants for theirs. KATHY BUCKWORTH IS AN AWARD WINNING WRITER. Chewy Peanut Butter Chickpea Cookies.

Canada is the world's leading exporter of lentils, peas and chickpeas and Saskatchewan provides 97 per cent of the country's lentil crop, 83 per cent of the chickpea crop and 72 per cent of the dry pea crop. Pluses are high-fibre, gluten-free and a source of protein.

1. Spread chickpeas on baking sheet and bake in 180 C (350 F) oven, 15 mins. Remove and set aside to cool.

2. In bowl of food processor, puree cooled chickpeas, sugars, butter, salt and egg until as smooth as possible. Transfer to bowl and stir in peanut butter (mix will seem too soft at this point). Chill in refrigerator until dough stiffens considerably, at least an hour or overnight.

3. Drop golf ball-sized spoonfuls of chilled dough onto baking sheet, being sure to leave room for cookies to spread. Flatten each twice with the back of a fork, dipping fork in cold water between each cookie.

4. Bake in 180 C (350 F) oven, 13 mins., until starting to turn golden at edges. Let cool on sheet for 5 mins. and transfer to cooling rack. Cookies will be very soft and fragile at first, but once cool will have chewy centre and crisp edges. THE CANADIAN PRESS / SASKATCHEWAN PULSE GROWERS

Census Takers Required

The City of Calgary will be accepting applications for Census Takers from Jan. 14 – Feb. 1, 2013.

Applications can be completed in person at The City of Calgary, Election and Information Services' office, 1103 55th Ave. N.E., 8:30 a.m. – 4:00 p.m., Monday to Friday.

What does a Census Taker do?

Starting April 1, Census Takers go door-to-door visiting all homes in their assigned area (approximately 400–600 dwellings) to collect census and enumeration information. This year, Census Takers will be collecting data using tablet computers.

To qualify as a Census Taker, you must be:

- 18 years of age or older.
- Available to collect census information during the first three weeks of April.

- Available to attend a daytime training session in March.
- Able to walk in seasonable weather conditions.
- Able to operate a tablet computer (training will be provided).

In addition to the application form, there is a written skills assessment that takes approximately 30 minutes to complete.

Successful applicants will be assigned on a first-come first-served basis.

THE IN-CREDIBILITY
FACTOR
Teresa Kruse
life@metronews.ca

When Joy Hu started her showroom in Canada, she only had one rack of garments. Now she has 20. PROVIDED

Joy Hu is a Canadian fashion designer of couture clothing with showrooms in Toronto and New York. Joy started drawing at age five, produced her first design at the age of 13 and by the time she was 18 years old, her online design business was making $10,000 a month. She describes her design style as "a cocktail of romantic elegance with modern sexy chic and a dash of diamond."

I knew I was on my way when ...

I started my showroom in Canada in 2008. I had just moved from China the year before and I didn't know anyone.

I started with one rack of 10 garments but now I have 20 racks in my showroom.

My designs have an international taste with a twist of the East and West.

I look up to Vera Wang and in five or 10 years I want to be like her, but my definition of success isn't about money. I want my clients to feel and look good. When my customers are happy and come back, that makes me feel like I have done my job.

Action Plan:

Listen to your customer

There are lots of talented designers out there that are creating clothing more for themselves. Give your customer something creative, but remember to always make it wearable.

Social media is a powerful marketing tool

We don't have Facebook in China, so when I came to Canada I learned about social media. I have built my whole business based on Facebook — it's incredible. For the 21st century, online marketing is very important.

Watch your bottom line closely

In the early years of your business, be careful what you spend. I saw one designer put all their money into beautiful pictures, but went bankrupt shortly after. Start out slowly, be careful what you spend and always have a backup plan.

Calgary Flames players stretch before the start of practice on the first day of training camp in Calgary on Sunday. JEFF MCINTOSH/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Iginla forced to sit on first day of camp

NHL. Flames say holding captain out a precautionary move

When the Calgary Flames finally got in their first practice of the season at the Scotiabank Saddledome, their captain was nowhere to be seen on the ice.

Instead, Jarome Iginla watched from the owners' box, while the rest of his teammates took in their long-awaited first skate.

The Flames say a groin injury kept Iginla off the ice, but add the move is precautionary.

"We told Jarome that we didn't want him to skate today," Flames general manager Jay Feaster said. "We said that we won't get any points this week, but next Sunday we'd like to pick up two."

Quoted

"I'm just trying to be ready because, if you saw practice today, it was pretty intense. It's a slight pull." Flames captain Jarome Iginla on his groin injury.

"It's nothing that we're concerned about. It's just that we don't want to push right now when we don't think there's a reason to do that."

With the Flames set to start the National Hockey League with back-to-back home games against the San Jose Sharks on Sunday and the Anaheim Ducks on Monday, coach Bob Hartley said he didn't want to take any chances by having Iginla re-aggravate the injury.

"He wanted to go because he's the captain," said Hartley, who told Iginla that he didn't want him to start training camp until he felt 100 per cent. "He reacted very professionally. If it had been any other player, we would have done exactly the same thing. We're going to do what's best for them because what's best for them is best for the organization."

Forward Roman Cervenka and defenceman Anton Babchuk also missed the first day of training camp with the Flames.

Although the blood clots that Cervenka developed while playing for Lev Prague of the KHL this season are no longer present, the Czech forward is still on anticoagulant medication. Feaster said Cervenka won't be cleared to skate until being examined further by a hematology specialist in the United States.

Babchuk, meanwhile, suffered a shoulder injury while playing for Donbass HC of the KHL and Feaster said he expects him to be sidelined for three weeks.

During the first day of camp, Tanguay centred the top line with left-winger Curtis Glencross and Blake Comeau on right wing in place of Iginla.

"It's going to go by fast and we're going to try to make the best out of it," Tanguay said of the short time span all 30 teams are facing to prepare for the season. "We feel lucky to be starting here at home. We feel lucky to have an extra day to practise. We feel anxious to get going."

Falcons survive 'Hawks historic comeback bid

Matt Bryant kicked a 49-yard field goal with eight seconds left and the Atlanta Falcons bounced back after blowing a 20-point lead in the fourth quarter, defeating Russell Wilson and the gutsy Seattle Seahawks 30-28 in an NFC divisional playoff game on Sunday.

The Falcons appeared ready to allow the biggest fourth-quarter comeback in NFL playoff history when Marshawn Lynch scored on a two-yard run with 31 seconds left.

But Matt Ryan completed two long passes after the kickoff, setting up Bryant's winning kick. The Falcons will host the 49ers in the NFC championship game.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20

You will find it difficult to disguise your feelings today, but why would you want to? No matter how hard you try to keep your opinions to yourself something will slip out. Let's just hope it's something good.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21

No matter how carefully you try to explain something to a friend or colleague they just don't seem to get it. Are they stupid or are they stubborn? Whatever the answer don't waste too much time on them.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Don't commit yourself too easily, especially if certain people try to push you into making a quick decision. In fact, the more they talk up a project the more suspicious you should be. Make sure you know all the facts.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

You would be wise to remember today that not everyone is as straightforward and honest as you – in fact some people seem to be evasive by design. Trust only those who have a track record of being straight shooters.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

If you have a detailed plan of what you intend to do everything will work out fine. If, however, you leave things to chance your day will probably fall apart in a matter of minutes. So draw up that plan.

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

If you follow the rules over the next 24 hours you won't go far wrong, but if you cut corners you could end up in serious trouble. Today's aspects suggest someone is in for a rude awakening. Don't let it be you.

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Use your head when dealing with people in positions of power. You may be entitled to get angry with a certain individual but don't forget they have the power to make things difficult for you.

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Spell out what you expect of other people in plain and simple language today, because if your instructions are vague it's guaranteed they will get it wrong. Then they will be perfectly entitled to blame it on you.

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

You may have made up your mind about something but if everyone else disagrees with you it might be wise to think again. If you discover later on that you made a decision based on limited facts it could prove costly.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

You need to delegate more and you need to trust friends and colleagues to do a good job. Okay, so it won't be as good as if you had done it yourself but not even a Capricorn can do it all. Get help.

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

Some things happen for a reason and some things, well, they just seem to happen. What takes place today will most likely fall in the latter category. Don't search too hard for an answer. Maybe there isn't one.

♓ Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Why worry about things that most likely will never happen? If you stop and consider what you are getting worked up about you will realize it is of no importance at all. Why frown when you could be smiling?
